BUSINESS IN FREDERICK MARYLAND

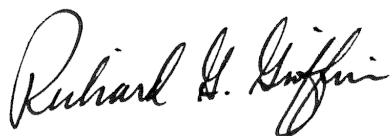

Greetings!

Having the Maryland School for the Deaf (MSD) in Frederick, along with the Maryland Deaf Community Center (MDCC), and many Deaf-owned businesses, bring significant cultural, social, and economic value to the community. Check out this issue of City of Frederick's Business eNews for articles on the new MDCC under construction on N. East Street along with stories featuring several Deaf owned businesses. Frederick values itself as a cultural hub where American Sign Language (ASL) and Deaf identity are preserved and celebrated. This enriches the local culture and raises awareness of Deaf culture in Frederick and beyond. Additionally, there is economic empowerment and job creation through Deaf-owned businesses, and many Frederick businesses are ASL-Friendly – which provides safe and welcoming spaces for ASL users.

Also in this issue, is a story about what's driving Frederick's top employers and about SCORE, which is one of the organizations that provides business planning services to Frederick startups. This past weekend, the annual Maryland Economic Development Association (MEDA) annual conference was held in Cambridge, for which I have been the Board President for the past two years and will be passing the torch to my long-time colleague and friend Tammi Thomas with TEDCO. The conference brought together several hundred in attendance and great programs and discussions.
